Over the past 50+ years, Help has created an integrated network of services to provide people with disability the essentials, routine and stretch they seek in life.

We've grown into a diverse organisation that employs more than 700 staff; almost 300 of whom are people with disability.

Whether it's employment, learning, living arrangements, community involvement or anything else in between – we work alongside people to help them achieve the things they set out to.

We do this with the help of our social enterprises; organisational partnerships; and Disability Employment Services (DES) and NDIS service streams.

We pride ourselves on the precision, attention to detail, skill, and work ethic that Help's diverse workforce brings to our commercial businesses.
